AU Embassy: Automatic exchange of information in tax matters

On the 3rd of March in Canberra, Switzerland and Australia signed a joint declaration on the introduction of the automatic exchange of information in tax matters on a reciprocal basis. This is the first such declaration signed by Switzerland with a partner state. In accordance with their commitment to the Global Forum, Switzerland and Australia intend to start collecting data in 2017 and first transmit data in 2018, after the necessary legal basis has been created in both countries.

The joint declaration signed by Switzerland and Australia meets the criteria set by the Federal Council in the negotiation mandates of 8 October 2014. Aside from the EU and the United States, the negotiations initially concern individual other countries with which there are close economic ties and which provide their taxpayers with sufficient scope for regularisation. Australia fits this profile.

From a legal viewpoint, the two countries will exchange information automatically based on the Multilateral Competent Authority Agreement on the Automatic Exchange of Financial Account Information (MCAA). The MCAA is based on the international standard for the exchange of information developed by the OECD. During the Global Forum meeting in Berlin last October, almost 100 states committed to adopting the standard and to starting exchanging information on this basis for the first time in 2017 or 2018.

The joint declaration specifies that each jurisdiction is satisfied with the confidentiality rules provided for in the other jurisdiction with regard to tax. Moreover, Australia has established a regularisation procedure for its taxpayers. Finally, Australia has also declared its willingness to hold talks on improving market access for Swiss financial service providers.

Following the signing of this declaration, the Federal Department of Finance (FDF) will prepare a consultation draft on the introduction of the automatic exchange of information in tax matters with Australia. The corresponding Federal decree will be submitted to Parliament for approval.

NZ Embassy: Mobile unit for biometric Swiss passports

After the huge success two years ago, the Embassy of Switzerland in Wellington is pleased to announce that it will once again have a mobile biometry unit in New Zealand. A consular officer of the Embassy will travel to:
- Dunedin on 7 and 8 May 2015
- Hamilton on 11, 12 and 13 May 2015.

Swiss citizens who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity should complete the online application form for a new Swiss identity document via the following website: www.schweizerpass.ch. They should follow the procedure for Swiss nationals living abroad and must imperatively indicate under “remarks” (step 9 of the online application process) that they wish their biometric data to be recorded in Dunedin or in Hamilton.

For logistical reasons, applications for the mobile biometry unit will only be accepted until 20 April 2015.

Please note that only the applications of Swiss citizens duly registered with the Swiss Embassy in Wellington and whose civil/marital status is up-to-date can be processed.

Once the online application has been checked and approved, access to an online appointment calendar will be given to the applicant. The passport fees must be paid with a bank cheque or personal cheque at the time of the appointment. They are subject to exchange rate fluctuations and range from roughly 100 NZD for a children’s passport to 250 NZD for combined passport/ID card for adults.

Applications will be treated strictly on a first come, first served basis and the Embassy cannot guarantee all applicants will be able to get an appointment in case of high demand.

The Embassy would like to remind that biometric data can also be recorded all year long at its premises in Wellington, at a passport of-

Platinum awarded band “77 Bombay Street” returns to where it all started – former family singers back in Australia

Their albums and singles sold multi platinum, their shows sell out and they tour Europe: They couldn’t have wished for more when they first got together in their grandparents basement to rehearse. The band are one of Switzerland’s most successful groups since the past 5 years, won a Swiss Music Award for best song and best album, got to play at international music festivals and had one of their songs used as title song for a major German movie.

But that’s not the end of it - the four brothers (age 25-32) are ready to take the next step. And to do so, they have come back to where it all started: Australia.

10 years ago the Buchli family moved to Adelaide. Their family of 9 has always been very musical – all kids play several instruments and they often performed in the streets of their hometown in the Swiss mountains.

No reason to stop from doing so in their new home! Together with their parents the 6 boys and 1 girl travelled vast parts of South Australia where they performed as family singers, sometimes they even used typical Swiss instruments such as the Alphorn and the accordion. They even won contests and were on TV.

And last but not least: Their address in Adelaide is what gave the band their name. Check out their songs on: www.youtube.com/user/77bombaystreetmusic

77 Bombay Street are back recording their 3rd album with producer Chris Vallejo (Passenger, Empire of the Sun) at Linear Recording Studio in Sydney

Swiss Review / March 2015

Canberra Swiss Club
Many of us remember traditional dishes from Switzerland – but how to prepare them? Since some years we conduct cooking classes at Ellie & Peter Zimmermann’s café d’lish. Fasnachtschüechli, Chäschüechli, Laugenpretzel, Alpelmagronen, how to make Sauerkraut are only some of the dishes we learned. The classes are a much loved way of keeping up culinary traditions. The next round will be in April. Regarding culinary traditions we are lucky in the ACT to have Swiss chefs operating a café and an organic restaurant and a baker/confiseur baking traditional bread and preparing the most delicious truffles.

Another interesting side of the ACT is the evidence that Aboriginal people have lived in the Canberra region for more than 20,000 years. The currently known sites of Aboriginal art are in Tidbinbilla Nature Reserve and Namadgi National Park. The next bush walk of the Swiss Club will be to Yankee Hat art site on May 3rd.

Friendship between the states: a group from Canberra participated in the Swiss Yodlers of Sydney’s harbor cruise. We were warmly welcomed and spent a magnificent cruise with dinner and entertainment. The following day we were invited to a BBQ. What a great way of building friendships – thank you to the Swiss Yodlers!

Auckland Swiss Club

What a start to the New Year. We had a nice walk in the Waitakere ranges, the new members day at the farm in January and then traditional picnic with Society games mid February. We had more than 70 people enjoying a sunny day at the Swiss farm in Kawapakapa. All enjoyed the lovely company. The beach party on 1 March was well attended at beautiful Long Bay.

Taranaki Swiss Club

We had our Annual Picnic on Feb 8th on a beautiful, warm sunny day. About 250 people enjoyed Swiss tradition – music, barbequed bratwurst / cervelas, steinstossen and the very popular “Schwingen”.
