ADVENTURER MIKE HORN'S THIRD ATTEMPT TO CLIMB K2

South African-born Swiss Mike Horn, globally acknowledged as the world's greatest modern day explorer, has set his mind on climbing the Asian mountain K2. In 2013 and 2015 two attempts had failed. Since the end of May his latest K2 adventure is under way.

Mike Horn (born in 1966) is a South African-born Swiss professional explorer and adventurer. Born in Johannesburg, he currently resides in Chateau d'Oex, Switzerland. He studied Human Movement Science at Stellenbosch University. Mike Horn became famous in 2001 after completing a one-year, 6-month solo journey around the equator without any motorised transport. In 2004 he completed a two-year, 3-month solo circumnavigation of the Arctic Circle, and in 2006 along with Norwegian explorer Borge Ousland, became the first men to travel without dog or motorised transport to the North Pole during winter, in permanent darkness.

Mike says he first felt the call of the wild at 24 years old. He quit his comfortable sports science job, gave everything away and moved to Switzerland. From there, he embarked on a series of adventures, including descending by delta plane from a 22,000-foot mountain and riverboarding the world's deepest canyon.

Countless breathtaking adventures

In two decades, he has seen more of the Earth than possibly any other human. An overview of his past expeditions:

Pole2Pole

In 2016, Horn set off on his latest expedition "Pole2Pole", a two-year circumnavigation of the globe via the South and North Pole. On May 8, 2016, Mike left from his point of departure, The Yacht Club Monaco. H.S.H Prince Albert of Monaco II and Mercedes-Benz sponsored his trip. Mike will travel by land and his sailing vessel, Pangaea, from Africa to Antarctica, Oceania, Asia, the Arctic, and back to Europe. Horn's current expedition Pole2Pole falls perfectly under three main themes: Adventure, Environment, and Sharing.

On February 7 22:50 UT Mike Horn completed the longest ever solo, unsupported north-to-south traverse of Antarctica from the Princess Astrid Coast (lat -70.1015 lon 9.8249) to the Dumont D'urville Station (lat -66.6833 lon 139.9167) via the South Pole. He arrived at the pole on January 9, 2017. A total distance of 5100 km was covered utilizing kites and skis in 57 days.

Pangaea

In 2007, Mike and his team launched the Young Explorers Program. This program consisted in recruiting and then inviting young adults between the ages of 15 and 20 years old, from all over the world – to explore the Earth's continents and travel across the planet's oceans with the PANGAEA expedition sailing vessel. Close to 100 Young Explorers accompanied him to 12 hot spots around the world where they implemented ecological and social projects – following the motto “explore – learn – act”. Although this project ended in 2012, the Young Explorers – now young world ambassadors – continue to set in motion different types projects around the globe.

North Pole

In a world-first, Mike set off on a 60-day voyage on skis without dogs or motorised transportation during the Arctic night with Norwegian explorer Borge Ousland in 2006. From February to March they dragged pulkas from Cape Artichsky in Russia to the North Pole. For two months the pair walked in total darkness, and often on paper-thin ice.

Arktos

In 2002–04, Mike went around the world on the Arctic Circle solo in an expedition dubbed “Arktos”. It was a solitary voyage of two years and three months without motorised transport (boat, kayak, ski kite and on foot) on a 20,000 kilometres (12,000 mi) odyssey. Mike left North Cape in Norway and went through Greenland, Canada, Alaska, Bering Strait and Russian Siberia before he reached North Cape.

Mike spent time with the local people who had courageously adapted to the unforgiving environment.

Latitude Zero

In 1999, Mike set off on an 18-month voyage to circle the equator on foot and by sailing. He left Gabon and crossed the Atlantic to Brazil on a 28-foot trimaran. He then crossed Brazil and Ecuador on bike, canoe and on foot. After that he crossed the Pacific Ocean reaching Indonesia via the Galapagos Islands and crossed Borneo and Sumatra on foot, before crossing the Indian Ocean. To finish the expedition, he crossed the African continent on foot through the Congo and Gabon.

This was the first solo circumnavigation of the world around the Equator – unaided and with no engine-driven support.

Amazon

In April 1997, Mike launched his first big expedition: the six-month solo traverse of the South American continent. He left on foot from the Pacific Ocean and climbed to the source of the Amazon River high in the Peruvian Andes. From here he descended the 7,000 km of the Amazon River on a hydrospeed, until he reached the Atlantic Ocean. It took him six months, solo and without assistance.

Mike hunted, fished and survived off his environment. His finish point was the Atlantic Ocean where he finally tasted saltwater.

SWISS AMBASSADOR PRESENTS CREDENTIALS TO THE PRESIDENT OF MALAWI

The Ambassador of Switzerland to Zimbabwe and Malawi, Mr. Niculin Jäger presented his Letters of Credence to the President of the Republic of Malawi, His Excellency, Peter Mutharika at State House at the end of February 2019.

Following the presentation of credentials, Ambassador Jäger had a meeting with the Malawi Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, Dr. Emmanuel Fabiano in which they discussed the breadth of the bilateral relationship between Switzerland and Malawi. Deliberated was also the determination to strengthen development cooperation that is being administered through the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) in Malawi and the region.

Ambassador Jäger and Minister Fabiano underscored the significance of enhancing development work with a particular focus on reducing poverty through food security and HIV/AIDS related programmes.

Prior to the official meeting, the Ambassador met with the Honorary Consul General, Mrs.

Sylvia Giannakis, the Swiss community in Lilongwe and members of the diplomatic corps accredited to Malawi.

SWITZERLAND RESPONDS TO THE GROWING HUMANITARIAN NEEDS IN SOUTHERN AFRICA

Switzerland has announced humanitarian assistance totalling CHF 3 million between March and April to help people in Southern Africa, who continue to face the consequences of natural disasters and widespread food insecurity.

Of the CHF 3 million pronounced, CHF 2 million is targeting the victims of Cyclone Idai – one of the most powerful cyclones to have affected Mozambique, Malawi and Zimbabwe in the last thirty years.

The CHF 2 million will be used to restore safe drinking water and send Swiss experts to UN agencies in the three affected countries – with CHF 1 million going to the Swiss Humanitarian Aid and the other half going to the various UN agencies responding to the effects of the disaster.

Food insecurity on the rise

The other CHF 1 million will go to Zimbabwe's Flash Appeal that was launched at the end of February 2019 by the United Nations (UN) and the government of Zimbabwe to provide critical food and livelihood support as food insecurity continues to rise due to a devastating drought that is affecting the region.

More than 5 million people affected

The Zimbabwe Flash Appeal support will be channelled through the World Food Programme (WFP) in selected communities and will cover the most urgent food security needs of more than 5.3 million people who are estimated to be in urgent need of humanitarian assistance and protection during the 2018/2019 lean season (October – April) and beyond.

“We stand in full solidarity with the people in Southern Africa. The assistance announced by Switzerland will go towards helping those affected by food insecurity caused by prolonged drought, as well as to strengthen capacities to manage recurrent disasters,” said Ambassador of Switzerland to Zimbabwe and Malawi, Mr. Niculin Jäger.

ASO

From 16 to 18 July the ASO Congress 2019 will take place in Montreux. Details are available from the ASO.ch website. E-Voting and banking issues are still hotly debated topics. I was not able to attend the March session of the council, as I had to remain in SA for other engagements. However, I will participate in the August session of the council and will report back as per usual.
